

Tuesday 18 April 2017

Quotable

“Soon you will be where your own eyes will see the source and cause and give you their own answer to the mystery.”

— Dante Alighieri, Inferno

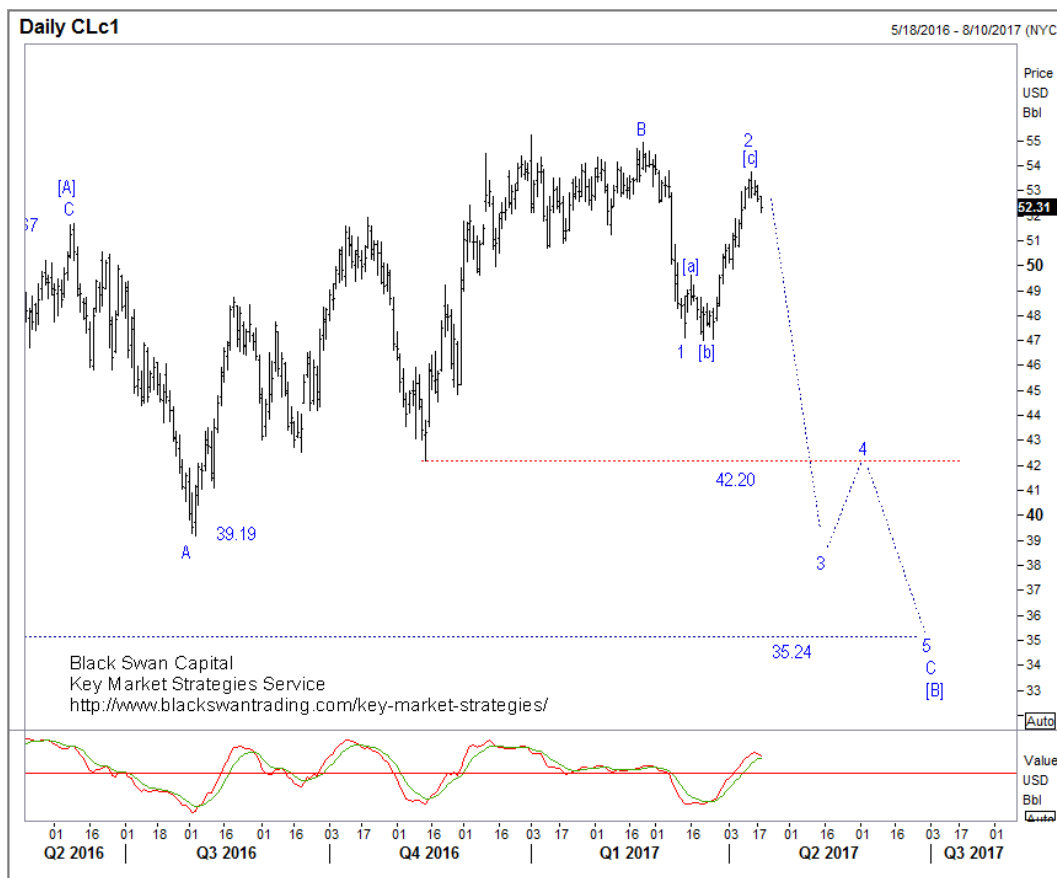

Commentary & Analysis

Are Comdols in the cross-hair if oil prices see $35?

Based solely on our wave analysis, the short answer is yes. And near-term, the price action today in iron ore, copper, and gold isn't helping commodity currencies (even though the rest of the majors are doing well against the dollar).

It seems the most accurate correlation for the commodity currencies remains oil prices. We are expecting oil to see $35 before it goes higher; that is likely not good for commodity currencies. Of course the big assumption here, or elephant in the room, is the US dollar. If our oil guess proves true, it means the US dollar is ramping up again. And a stronger dollar pressures commodities across the board.

Crude Oil Futures (WTI): Targeting down to $35 per barrel and wondering how this might not only hurt commodity currencies, but emerging market currencies and add to worries about the House of Saud.

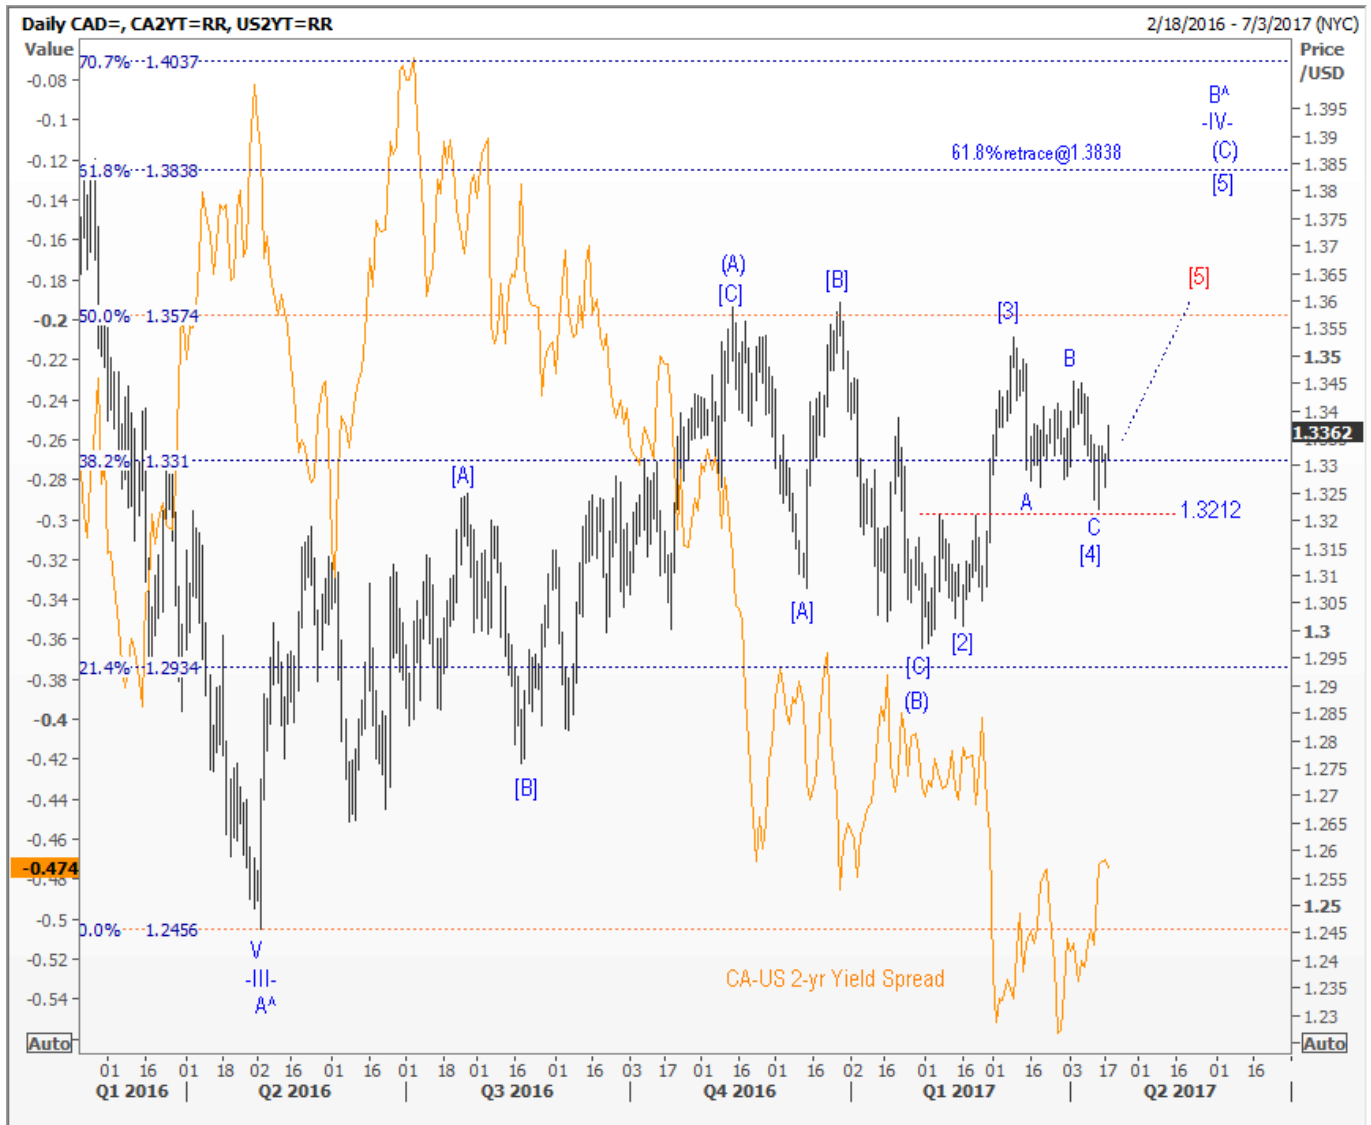

Australian dollar (AUD/USD) vs. Australia-US 2-yr Yield Spread Daily: Looking for a move to the 0.7000-level...

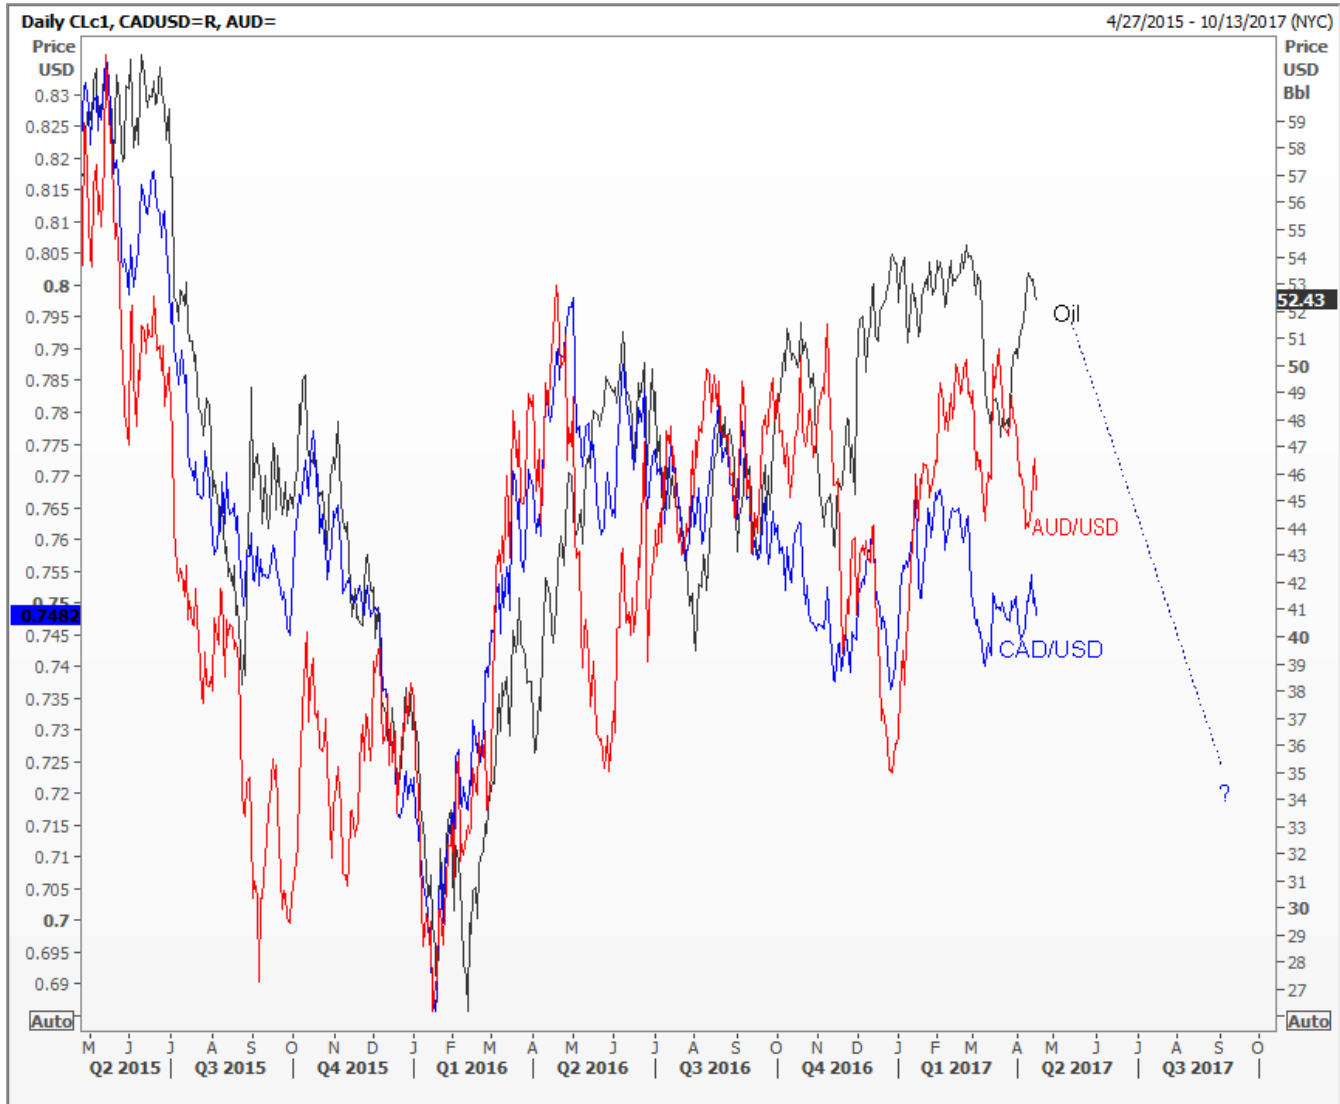

Black Swan Capital's Currency Currents is strictly an informational publication and does not provide personalized or individualized investment or trading advice. Commodity futures and forex trading involves substantial risk of loss and may not be suitable for you. The money you allocate to futures or forex trading should be money that you can afford to lose. Please carefully read Black Swan's full disclaimer, which is available at <http://www.blackswantrading.com/disclaimer>

Canadian dollar (USD/CAD) vs. Canada-US 2-yr Yield Spread Daily: Looking for a move to the 1.3800-level (a 61.8% retrace of Wave A^ down)...

Oil vs. AUD/USD vs. CAD/USD Daily: The correlation with oil is tighter for CAD than it is for Aussie; but in general, the correlation between oil and Comdols has been steady over the last several years...

Black Swan Capital's Currency Currents is strictly an informational publication and does not provide personalized or individualized investment or trading advice. Commodity futures and forex trading involves substantial risk of loss and may not be suitable for you. The money you allocate to futures or forex trading should be money that you can afford to lose. Please carefully read Black Swan's full disclaimer, which is available at <http://www.blackswantrading.com/disclaimer>

Copper Daily: Looks as if it's turning over yet again after failing to get above the long-term trend line resistance going back to February 2011...

You can sign up for a free trial of our services at our home page www.blackswantrading.com

Thank you.

Jack Crooks
 President, Black Swan Capital
jcrooks@blackswantrading.com
www.blackswantrading.com
 772-349-6883/ Twitter: bswancap

Black Swan Capital's Currency Currents is strictly an informational publication and does not provide personalized or individualized investment or trading advice. Commodity futures and forex trading involves substantial risk of loss and may not be suitable for you. The money you allocate to futures or forex trading should be money that you can afford to lose. Please carefully read Black Swan's full disclaimer, which is available at <http://www.blackswantrading.com/disclaimer>